

Key takeaways from VOICE OF THE ANALYST STUDY

Security analysts are spending most of their time on activities that are the least likely to thwart an attack.

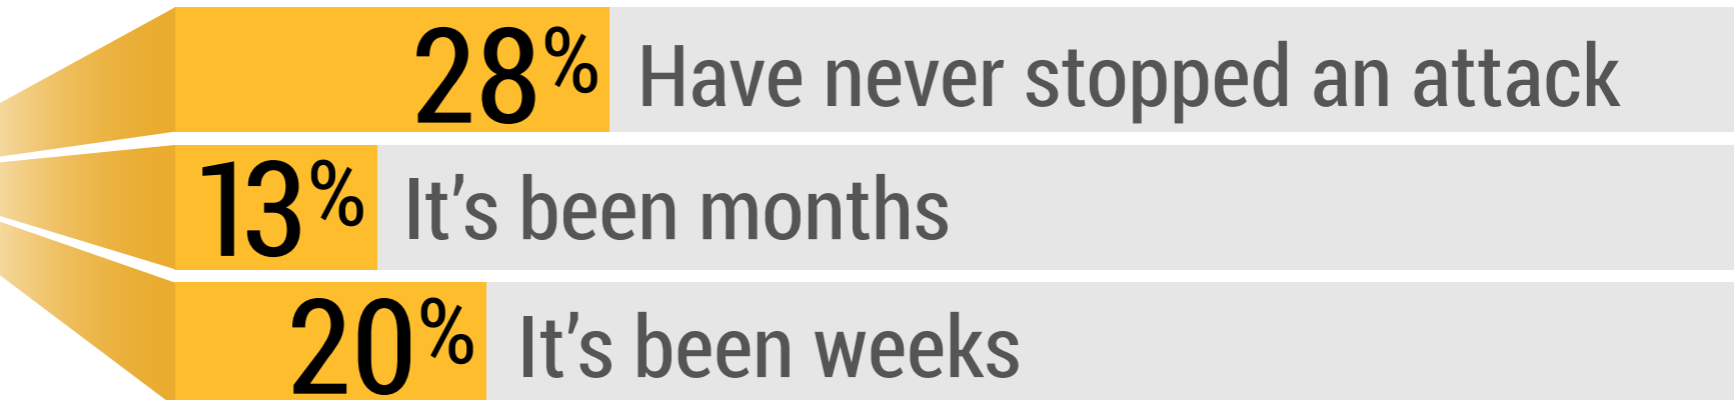

Activity ranking across perceptual dimensions.

Although breaches occur on a nearly daily basis, many analysts report they have never or have rarely stopped an intrusion.

When did you last stop an attack?

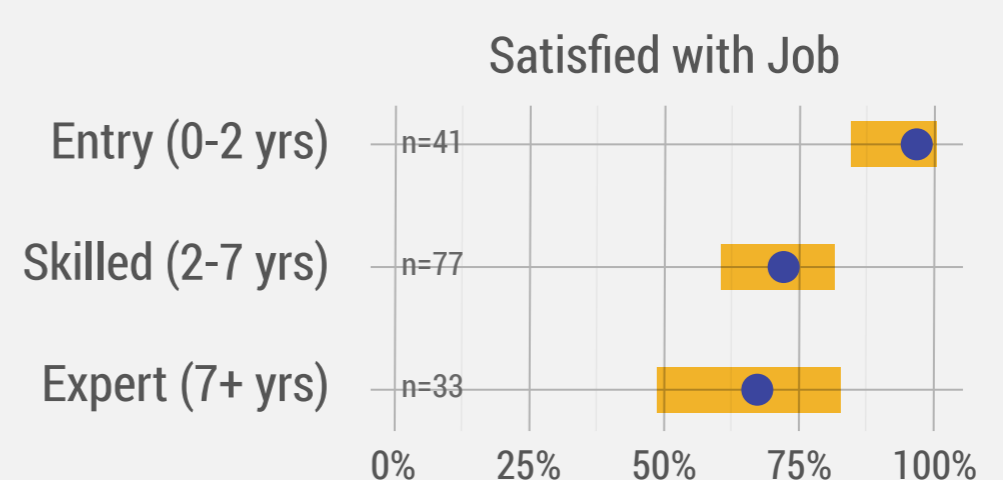

Security Analysts are hard to find, train and retain. In fact, the more security expertise a security analyst gains, the less satisfied he/she is in their role.

Protecting Our Most Critical Cyber Security Asset –The Security Analyst.

1 in 3 respondents reported they are actively looking for new roles

Job satisfaction appears to erode the longer they spend in the SOC

Download this report from go.respond-software.com/voiceofanalyst